NEW YORK, NY, October 20, 2009—The Studio Museum in Harlem will open the fall/winter season with 30 Seconds off an Inch, a major exhibition of works by forty-two artists hailing from over ten countries. This survey brings together contemporary artworks by artists who, having absorbed the lessons of U.S.-based Conceptual art and identity politics along with those of several mid-century avant-garde international movements and experimental work by artists of color, imbue their respective practices with a critical sense of play and obliqueness. The exhibition presents an inter-generational dialogue among the featured artists, who use a variety of media, including figurative painting, large-scale sculpture, photography, video and site-specific installation, toward engaging with the body and race in clever, subtle and astute ways.
Eschewing figurative representation and explicit narrative, these artists use, borrow and create alternate aesthetic strategies, influenced by both their predecessors and contemporaries. They incorporate language and text into artworks; use found objects to reference history and culture; and create ephemeral performances or interventions. The result is work that conveys spirit and humor, and that is productively ambiguous, evading projections of any fixed political message.

The exhibition proposes an exciting and interesting set of ideas that engage with the space between art and life. Rather than adhering to the exclusive use of traditional media, these artists venture outdoors collecting materials, walking along city streets and observing vernacular culture. From this social world beyond gallery walls, the artists cull an improbable set of art-making materials; they find inspiration in the makeshift qualities of everyday life and translate that imprecision into art.

Organized by Naomi Beckwith, Assistant Curator, 30 Seconds off an Inch will be on display from November 12, 2009, through March 14, 2010. Accompanying this exhibition is an extensive full-color catalogue with a critical essay by the curator.

EDUCATION AND PUBLIC PROGRAMS
In conjunction with the fall/winter 2009-10 exhibition and project season, The Studio Museum in Harlem’s Department of Education and Public Programs offers a range of programs, activities and events incorporating artists, scholars and critics in thought-provoking discussions on a wide variety of issues central to the works on view. For more information on public programs, please visit www.studiomuseum.org, or call 212.864.4500.

Kabir Carter: Shared Frequencies
Sunday, November 22, 2—5pm
Shared Frequencies is a portable sound installation and performance environment that relies on multiplex radio communications events as its primary performance material. An array of radio scanners is paired with a set of analog synthesizer modules, and assembled on a set of small, modest folding tables. The scanners pick up a wide variety of speech, encoded data streams, and noise that are converted into (more) synthetic sound. The results of these electroacoustic interactions are projected into the air, and the sounds heard are physically modified by the shape and volume of the installation’s site. The project was initially supported by a New York City Independent Radio and Sound Art Fellowship, a program of Media Alliance funded by The Jerome Foundation.

Shared Frequencies is FREE. Seating is limited and available on a first-come, first-served basis. Please call 212.864.4500 x264 to reserve a space.

ABOUT THE STUDIO MUSEUM IN HARLEM
The Studio Museum in Harlem is a contemporary art museum that focuses on the work of artists of African descent locally, nationally and globally, as well as work that has been inspired and influenced by African-American culture, through its exhibitions, Artist-in-Residence program, education and public programming, permanent collection, and archival and research facilities.

The Studio Museum in Harlem is committed to serving as a unique resource in the local community, and in national and international arenas, by making artworks and exhibitions concrete and personal for each viewer. The Museum provides a context within which to address the contemporary and historical issues presented through art by artists of African descent.

Since opening in a rented loft at Fifth Avenue and 125th Street in 1968, the Studio Museum has earned recognition for its catalytic role in promoting the works of artists of African descent. The Museum's Artist-in-Residence program has supported over ninety graduates who have gone on to highly regarded careers. A wide variety of education and public programs have brought the African-American experience alive for the public by means of lectures, dialogues, panel discussions and performances, as well as interpretive programs, both on- and off-site, for students and teachers. The exhibitions program has also expanded the scope of art historical literature through the production of scholarly catalogues, brochures and pamphlets.

The Studio Museum's permanent collection contains over 1,600 works, including drawings, pastels, prints, photographs, mixed-media works and installations. It is comprised of works created by artists during their residencies, as well as pieces given to the Museum to create an art-historical framework for artists of African descent. Featured in the collection are Terry Adkins, Romare Bearden, Skunder Boghossian, Robert Colescott, Melvin Edwards, Richard Hunt, Hector Hyppolite, Serge Jolimeau, Lois Mailou Jones, Jacob Lawrence, Norman Lewis, Philome Obin, Betye Saar, Nari Ward and Hale Woodruff, among others. The Museum also is the custodian of an extensive archive of the work of photographer James VanDerZee, the quintessential chronicler of the Harlem community from 1906 to 1984.
